58 2385869*990 Part III. Line 4a. STATEMENT OF PROGRAM SERVICES AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS

SeaKeepers is dedicated to the development and deployment of technologies to monitor the oceans in support of conservation and sustainability. Specifically, the Society designed and engineered an autonomous flow through modular monitoring system (the SeaKeeper 1000) that continuously measures meteorological and ocean data and then transmits via satellite every 1 to 3 hours, while gathering archival one-minute data stored onboard the units computers for periodic retrieval. The system was awarded patent #6,536,272.

The SeaKeeper 1000 uses a standard suite of weather instruments combined with a specialized set of automated laboratory analytic devices to measure certain seawater parameters such as temp, salinity, pH, dissolved oxygen, etc.

A key attribute of the system is that it is modular - new sensors can be added over time to measure such things as nutrients, chlorophyll, CO<sub>2</sub>, arsenic, and mercury, to name a few. The SeaKeeper System is positioned to become a "standard" for modular automated environmental monitoring that can address growing concerns over climate change, ocean acidification and water pollution in general.

The SeaKeepers Fleet is made up of private yachts, cruise ships, a yacht transport, research vessels, and piers. In 2009, SeaKeepers commissioned 5 new systems and at year end had 6 systems in various stage of install.

Affected by the economic downturn, in 2009, SeaKeepers experienced a 60% drop in revenue from the prior year. SeaKeepers management took strategic steps to restructure its operations in a way to allow SeaKeepers to continue its ocean monitoring and data gathering mission, increase outreach & reduce costs. The first goal was to reduce overhead & to find a way to continue to have the SeaKeepers Systems built and maintained at reasonable costs that would not require capitalizing the systems during the building process. Maintenance of the Calibration Laboratory and personnel was also another expense that needed to be eliminated, while still affording SeaKeepers the ability to calibrate its ocean sensors.

Being that the SeaKeeper System had now been deployed successfully on NOAA Sanctuary vessels and on the Univ of South Florida's Research vessel, the opportunity was right to license a company to build the system, to continue its development to meet new challenges, and to develop commercial markets for its wider distribution. In 2009, SeaKeepers extended an exclusive license to YSI to build the SeaKeeper Systems and to provide them to SeaKeepers at a preferred price so that SeaKeepers could continue to build its fleet and meet its commitments. YSI is also able to commission and and maintain the SeaKeepers Fleet as coordinated by SeaKeepers. Each commercial sale also provides SeaKeepers with a revenue stream not available before. Working with the University of South Florida, SeaKeepers was also able to release the overhead involved with the maintenance of the Calibration Laboratory by donating it to USF's College of Marine Sciences. As such, YSI and USF work closely together and can provide calibration services as needed. These changes will allow SeaKeepers to continue operations as usual at reduced costs and will also expand the availability of the SeaKeepers System to other platforms it would not have been able to easily reach before. This provides validation to SeaKeepers founding members of their foresight many years ago when funding the development of this modular monitoring system..

Expanding our reach further into the yachting community, SeaKeepers and Yachts International magazine announced an exclusive high profile media partnership in 2009. There are many exciting plans for 2010 which will expand the SeaKeepers outreach and diversify its revenue streams. Also, in 2009 SeaKeepers with the collaborative assistance of the Nicholas Institute for Environmental Policy Solutions at Duke University, published the 2nd edition of its "Critical Ocean Issues" publication - introducing the "Action Framework: A Pathway for Change."

Part I Line 6: Volunteers provide programming services and web interface for data access to allow reporting of SeaKeepers Fleet transmissions.

Part VI. Section A. Line 2. Board members Robert Fisher and Marilyn King Fisher are husband and wife.

Part VI. Section A. Line 5. As a result of decreased funding in 2009, SeaKeepers management, and with board approval, strategically decided to outsource the building of the SeaKeepers Systems and the maintenance of the fleet. This would reduce overhead drastically. During the transition, the existing parts and equipment were moved to the YSI facilities in St. Petersburg, Florida where they will be utilized for SeaKeepers needs until exhausted. Any additional parts purchased would be paid for by SeaKeepers at preferred pricing. The Calibration Laboratory equipment, originally received as a donation, was in turn donated to the University of Florida and although not a financially material transfer of equipment, accessibility is maintained as calibrations are outsourced. This changes were necessary to markedly reduce overhead and eliminate the need for the physical space and the personnel needed to house these materials. These changes were completed at the end of 2009 and will be more materially reflected in 2010.

Part VI. Section B. Line 11A. The executive committee of the Board has the authority to approve the 990. The 990 and underlying schedules are provided to the committee either electronically or by mail for review and approval. Approval is obtained via phone or email.
